SEASON OF THE APOSTLES

The "first Sunday of the Apostles" is a specific date in the liturgical calendar, marking the end of the Season of Apostles, a period of missionary focus. The "Golden Friday" is the first Friday of this season, often remembered for the healing miracle of Peter and John at the temple. The Golden Friday is the first Friday after Pentecost and is part of the Season of Apostles. It's named after the miracle of Peter and John healing a lame man in the temple (Acts 3:1-10). The miracle symbolizes the power of the Holy Spirit and the apostles' ability to perform wonders in the name of Jesus. In 2025, the Golden Friday would fall on June 27th. The "Season of the Apostles," or Slihe, is a liturgical season in Syro-Malabar Catholic Church that begins on Pentecost, the 50th day after Easter. It commemorates the early Church, the apostles, and the inauguration of the Church through their actions. The season lasts for seven weeks, with the Feast of the Apostles celebrated on June 30th.
